THE HOSPITAL BUILDING.

The work of the hospital has far outgrown the accommodation of the present building, and the Finance Committee have at two meetings during the year had under consideration the question c ways and means of providing enlarged seconmodation. This has practically resolved itself into a resolution to remove elsewhere, since it has been found at once impossible and undesirable to enlarge the hospital in its present situation. it is now said that Liu carried out his instruc-

WALSHAM. 2. - Situation :- The Hospital is shot in on the the exclusion of Chinese from Canada. A meet. guisted, and when this is done the universe has requirements; and again during the past year and west by narrow streets. Until recently a north and east by Chinese houses and on the south have the necessary funds been forthcoming no low bangalow to the north left the harbour side comparatively open, but this has given way to a pile of Chinese houses that have out off our only possible source of fresh sir. This position in the heart of the Chiusse city was admirable for the opening of work among the Chinese, but now that the hospital is so widely known it is in many wavs dissevantageous.

3 .- Smitation :- In connection with a Hospital's great deal of washing of soiled dressings. &c. has to be done on the spot, and in the Alice Memorial Hospital this can only be done in a closed court-yard, from which gases and vapours have no means of escape, excepting skywards, after passing the open doors and windows of all the wards. It ment of dental cases, the number of which in would provide the trifling necessaries for the appears, too, that in Java there is no labour ordinance regulating the relations between planters and coolies, and the latter oppose to take advantage of the fact by deserting and doing exactly as they please while working for their employers, and for some reason or other. planters are not in a position to import foreign and void, as the Government is favourably inclined to the emigration of coolies, which assists materially the impoverished colonial exchequer. The planters have urged upon the Government the necessity of passing a labour ordinance forbilding the engag much of coolies in Java so long as ther servic s am required in the Notherlands India, but they have received a negative reply. It is said that the authorities in Java coonive at the emigration of coolies from that island, though it was been. brought to their notice that thousands of Javanese have gone under contract to British North Borneo and died there by hundreds from hard work and neglect, while the planters assert that a regular, though underpers and is stocked by Javanese who have been either virtually kilumped or taken from their homes under false protences. In many other parts of the Netherlands Indies for ica coolies are employed by the planters, and they are protected by special labour ordinaces. It therefore seems strangs that there ahould be no legislation of the kind for the protention of coolies who are Datch subjects, or for conserving the interests of the planters in Java. The laxity of the local anthorities in regard to the foreign employedent of Javadese coolies is somewhat inconsistent with the culture system or method of officially—we might almost say despotically-directed labour by which the Government of the Notherlands Indies have learished themselves and provided so effectually for the population under their rule. We suspect, however, the truth is that the ava Administrations, with the consent lof the home Government, are abandoning the old police, on account of its fiscal failure, and are glad of the opportunity of allowing the surplus coolie population to go abroad and thus relieve the State of the obligation of providing for them, as well as yielding the exchequer a fair revenue. It must be remembered that the Dutch Indies, especially Java, do not cover their expenses, and that the home G werncount is called upon every year to make good the deficit in the revenue. Some time ago a scheme for increasing the colonial revenue was considered necessary, and perhaps it includes a relaxation

A pound of magnesium is consumed in about 100 hours, and gives a light equal to that produced by 130 pounds of candles, 80 nounds of petroleum, or somewhat more than 100 ouble yards of illuminating gas. The first cost of the lamps is moderate, and the advantage is offered of freedom from risk of fire. At the pretent cost of magnesium, the running expense is about two france an hour, but with the anticipated great reduction in the price of the metal, the lamp may be made fairly economical.

Artificial marble is produced by M. Maard by the following process: 10 part of burnt gypenn and I part of alum are mixed together in a little water, calcined, and then reduced to a powder To 25 parts of the powder is added 22 parts of tale, 5 parts of chloride of magnesium, 44 part of clay, and I part of potassio alum. The mix-ture can be worked or painted like marble.

From a study of the observed transits of Mer cury of two centuries. M. Tisserand concludes that the increase in the length of our day, pro duced by tidal action, has nearly the same value as the diminution which results from the contraction of the earth caused by secular cooling and that the two compensating effects keep the length of the sidereal day very nearly invariable

Mussel poisoning appears in chronic form in There dol, Euego, where this food is abundant on the shores, and other forms are care. An Argentiae physician, M. Seger, states that mussels are solden injurious at the time maximum growth, which corresponds with moon, but that they become poor and of poisoners as the moon wanes. During t period many of the mollusks die, and the sur ors seem to absorb the products of the nutref tion of their bodies. In consequence a form liver complaint is common among the nati consumers of musselv.

The trievels of M. Graffigny is said to b convenient, though not very economical, elect cal vehicle, which is driven by the current fro a primary battery, and can therefore be given fresh supply of energy at any drug store. battery is of the chromic soid type, with oarl and zinc electrodes, and comprises three sets a dozen cells each. The motor develops abo one-fourth of a horse power, falling off a thi in three hours. The total weight, including rider, is about 300 pounds, that of the trioye itself being 40 pounds, the battery 62, and t motor 40. This trisycle gives an average spec of 12 miles an hour, and in one test it ran miles with one charge of the battery of 13 quar of liquid. The consumption of zing is a litt less than a pound an hour.

Recent tests to determine the best fire-pro flooring indicate that tiles made of dense flo clay are vastly inferior to those made of poros terra cotta for the construction of floori arches; and that tiles whose cavities or hollow run at right angles to the supporting beam : incomparably stronger and more elastic the tiles whose cavities run parallel to the support ing beams. The two fire-brick tile arches wi cavities parallel to the beams broke und weights of 5.429 and 8,574 pounds respectivel The porous tile arches with cavities at rig angles to the beams withstood a load of 15,1-

A new form of null is developing in Australia rabbits as a result of their efforts to climb the wire netting placed in their way.

It is expected that cars on the proposed electric railway between Vienna and Budapest will traverse the entire distance of 150 miles at the regular working speed of 120 miles an hour. The read will have two main power stations. with 100 anh-stations, but only three or four stopping places. The cars will be about 130 feet long, fitted with four bougie trucks, and at each end will be two large electric motors to which the current will be transmitted by contact wheels running on conductor rails. The ends shaped like those of a ship. If the plans are N.N.W. gale and high ses. successfully carried out cars will start fromeach terminal station at intervals of 15 minutes.

In Germany, vegetable fibre is largely used outer garments and other purposes. Two establishments near Breslau convert pine leaves into wool and flanuels. Blankets of these materials are exclusively employed in the hospitals. 4th Mar., Amoy 5th, and Swatow 8th, had light barracks, and prisons of Vienna and Braslan, and to moderate S.W. wind and unsettled weather to have the great advantage of being vermin-proof. the morning of the 6th, wind veering to N.E. the bodycomfortablywarm. The shops producing heavy rain, moderating to arrival in Amoy. From land, France, and Germany by all trans-Atlantic these goods are lighted with gas made from the Amoy light N.E. wind and foggy weather to lines of steamers.
